

Anita Camarella & Davide Facchini Duo

la famiglia canterina

Honored with the "LadyLake Indie Music Awards" Best Album 2013 U.S.A.

Anita Camarella and Davide Facchini new album "La famiglia canterina" collects some of the greatest hits from the repertoire of Swing Italian. Draw a line of continuity in their music-historical research of early modern Italian music and is thought of as a natural evolution of their first recording, "Quei motivetti che ci piaccion tanto" (2002).

This CD is full of swing, songs, quotes, curiosities, guitars, special guests.

Each arrangement draws liberally from the many experiences, expertise and varied musical influences of the two artists.

Just within this CD has been possible to gather after 60 years, two Italian guitarists as legendary who have experienced first hand this music: Franco Cerri (1926), a famous jazz guitarist and Raf Montrasio (1929), legendary guitarist of the legendary Renato Carosone sextet in the 50s, by which Anita Camarella and Davide Facchini have been collaborating for several years.

"La famiglia canterina" (1941) is a song that carries with it many stories...

It's a tribute to the radio, whose first broadcasts reached Italy in 1924; its lyrics mention some of the most famous Italian singers, musicians and orchestras from the '30s and '40s - among them Ernesto Bonino and the Trio Lescano, original performers of this song - and hint at other songs of that era.

All this is told through the story of a singing family in which the mother, father and their little daughter are racing to sing their favorite songs.

For over 10 years Anita Camarella and Davide Facchini carry and tell around the world this wonderful music, a 'fresco' of Italian history that fascinates all generations, thanks to a show devoted to this repertoire, its performers and musicians.
